Bolded colleges are grant leads

The U.S. Department of Labor’s TAACCCT grant program is a major investment in building the capacity of community colleges. Grant funds are not used for tuition, but to create or enhance programs of study that lead to industry-recognized credentials, upgrade equipment, support student success toward completion, and more.

TAACCCT supports colleges to better serve workers eligible for training under the TAA for Workers program, as well as a broad range of other adults.

The Northeast Resiliency Consortium (NRC), led by Passaic County Community College, developed a psychological trauma prevention training curriculum that fills a gap in instruction (traditionally focused on treating illness or physical injury) for emergency medical services practitioners and other first responders. To ensure widespread dissemination of the innovative program, the NRC has partnered with the National Association of Emergency Medical Technicians to develop a continuing education course based on the new curriculum.

"Each of our member schools has built closer ties to the public workforce system and area employers. We are involving employers in curriculum review and course design in ways not envisioned prior to the grant. Our Job Developers are closely collaborating with their counterparts in the Local Workforce Development Boards and area One-Stops."
